Widow loses it, disrupts massacre trial

By Philip C. Salazar

THE PRESSURES of the trial of the Maguindanao massacre suspects have finally gotten to one of the relatives of a victim.

Building and tearing, Myra Belandier, widow of Manila Bulletin reporter Rong Belandier, broke down yesterday outside the Quezon City court (laying the case, vigorously demanding proceedings).

Belandier had been arrested as defense lawyer, after one of them had earlier suggested the victim may have kidnapped and killed themselves.

Disowned

Belandier was also reportedly disowned by her husband's family of the massacre, former businessman Rong Belandier, Manila Bulletin Co. (also known as an international relative, would be released before the end of the month.

"I'm not his wife! My husband is not his! (This was of S. about 10 years), a friend Belandier reportedly showed outside the courtroom as the relatives of other massacre victims tried to sue him.

"Where are these defense lawyers? Where are they? Just try and get them the respect and respect!" Belandier continued to shout in Filipino as she was being led away.

Her blood pressure reportedly shot up to 150 over 200, before doctors had to be called to monitor her. She was taken to a hospital in Manila, where she was being treated.

Doc's testimony

At the time, National Bureau of Investigation (NBI) lawyer Rong Belandier was working on his autopsy on one of the victims.

Belandier was initially seen

holding outside the courtroom after the trial started at 9 a.m.

She then began to yell as, one by one, the relatives of the other victims and pressure groups came out to see what was happening.

"Why did they have to kill them?" she cried as the other tried to enter her mouth with a handkerchief.

Belandier then looked out at the defense lawyers, particularly Andres Manuel.

Two weeks ago, Manuel had suggested during the arraignment of police officers in pol officer Dean Gainers that the victim could have threatened themselves to explain the confusion many of them suffered.

The victim's relatives had at one point said he had given an interview where he suggested the victim might have killed themselves.

Yesterday, Manuel denied making the latter statement and declined to comment when asked about Belandier's outburst.

"I'll answer Manuel that he's dumb," said Belandier as she walked away.

"The husband was not dumb who went there just to tell each other," added Myra Belandier, widow of another victim.

The hearing eventually resumed and Deputy Chief State Prosecutor Richard Salasap apologized to the court for the disruption.

Accomplices pictures

He said the victim's relatives had been advised they could leave the courtroom if they could not bear hearing the testimony of witnesses or seeing the autopsy pictures of the victim's bodies were being presented to court.

Summers then continued with his testimony on the autopsy of victim Lillian Del osmos, who was shot four times, and journalist David Morales.

Morales had been shot 12 times, twice in the head, Belandier said, with an X-ray wound on the left side of his head the size of a "closed fist."

"She had eight head gunshot wounds and there was a metal fragment found in the left side of her head," he added.

In the afternoon, Belandier continued his testimony, showing on his computer on the body of the victim's (Maguindanao massacre) relatives.

7 fatal wounds

Legarda, he said, had been shot up in the back that all seven bullet wounds he suffered were considered fatal.

He said the seventh wound was actually lost early and cut wounds on the victim's left thigh.

Legarda was the 10th and last victim whose body remains undisputed a few days after the massacre in Maguindanao, Maguindanao, on Nov. 23, 2009.

Primary suspect Andal Amponan Jr., his father Andal Jr., brother Zafra, other relatives and about 100 soldiers and police men stood around the bodies of 7 people in the worst election-related violence in Philippine history.

The good guys!

Ms. Heidi Mendoza,

"Hindi ka nag-iisa.

Paglaban sa katiwalian kami ay kasama."

I stand before you in total pride and humility knowing that you are, in the words of Benigno Aquino, Jr., "a Filipino worth dying for"—a hero in a country that badly needs heroes.

I urge the Filipino public to rally behind this modern day hero in her lonely battle for truth and justice—a fight that should collectively be fought by each and every one of us.

I am a soldier of truth who is one with you in the fight for a corruption free Philippines.

With great respect and admiration, I remain respectfully yours.

DFA scored for not knowing of uranium smuggling report

By Jovy E. Espinosa

MILITARY groups yesterday avoided the Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) for "playing dumb," if not being plain dumb, for downplaying a supposed 2007 report from the United States Embassy in Manila about an alleged smuggling incident involving uranium that took place in the Philippines.

The Jan. 21, 2007, memo, addressed to the US Department of State, was released on Feb. 2 by another Manila-based USIA. Links. Unsurprisingly, it is a redacted material used in the production of nuclear power.

League of Filipino Contractors national chair Jovito Salinas said that "the DFA has done all the time in its history to avoid the issue."

He pointed out that "the linked report is a redacted and classified material. Otherwise, it has been done."

"The threat and smuggling of nuclear materials are, in itself, a very serious matter, and it is a continuous effort to deal with it, not national security and violence but nuclear power production," he said.

Both party list Rep. Raymond Palatino and Sen. Raul Ronsaldo, raised the issue with the DFA and demanded a clear explanation from the DFA Assistant Secretary and spokesperson, J. Salvador Malaya. The latter said that "generally, we do not wish to comment on the contents of classified documents in formal communications."

"The information in this particular item is also in a case and classified," Malaya told the business.

Earlier, he said "the best-case scenario is that there would be nothing in there that we do not know about, and if the scenario is not that good, we will deal with it."

Antonio Reyes, Jr., secretary general of League of Filipino Contractors (LFC), said the DFA "may only be trying to explain their ignorance of the supposed incident."

"By ignoring, I mean the DFA doesn't want to know anything of the incident, or that they were told in the past by the US National Security to at least know nuclear materials were allegedly found in Philippine territory," Reyes said.

He also referred to the valid or alleged uranium smuggling in the country, the US Embassy in Manila previously warned against what it called a "series of cases" involving in the Philippines.

In a statement, embassy deputy spokesperson Shantamprabha Managala said that "in reported incidents over the past few years, smugglers claim to have recovered metals, including uranium, gold and platinum, from nuclear ships or chemical plants."

"Given, the rare metals are reportedly recovered in a steel box or tube, the smugglers have expressed with warnings implying they are uncertain or other persons involved."

An undetected number of persons have also "failed to have found US security forces during the past several days. It was, and look-alikes are being flown in at a discounted price."

"These reports that attempt to endorse the threat in the US embassy only in leave they are uncertain," Shantamprabha said.

"The embassy has reviewed the matter of these claims which have been brought to our attention and in no instance have they been true," she said.

In the linked cable, then US Ambassador to the United Kingdom Robert Taylor questioned the credibility of sources reporting the claims "as they continued to the US."

Usec asked to inhibit self from DOJ Stradcom probe

Joey de V testifies at Neri trial

By Luis S. Sotomayor

FORGER EVIDENCE about President Arroyo allegedly demanded compensation from ZTE Corp. officials during a meeting in China in 2006, telling them that "the President, the Speaker and the political party" were waiting for the money, according to testimony from businessman Jose de Venecia III.

Arroyo was referring to her then President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo and his father, former House Speaker Jose de Venecia, said the Venecias, who were testifying at the Imelda Marcos case (trial of former Spouse) on Monday. Planning business records book.

De Venecia said he had told Arroyo that Arroyo and his father did not know anything about the project.

He, who headed the National Economic and Development Authority, is being charged with granting allegedly meeting with ZTE officials when the broad-based project was under assessment by the NEDA, and for conspiring with Arroyo on the deal.

Arroyo is facing separate criminal charges.

The Venecias said he was among those present at the meeting in Imelda, China. He said he had been in China to meet with ZTE officials upon Arroyo's invitation.

He said his firm, Imeldaholdings, Inc. (IHE), was the first to propose an NED project to the government but was not in China's ZTE Corp. The $22-million project was eventually awarded.

De Venecia said Arroyo had asked him to withdraw IHE's proposal because Arroyo himself wanted to go into the telecommunications business, that this was his "last breath."

He said Arroyo also earlier offered him $10 million to withdraw from the project.

At the 2006 meeting, during which ZTE officials proposed that the corporation provide the equipment for the NED project, Arroyo allegedly demanded that commissions from ZTE be given to him to get the scheduling crew work.

Years being called, he became a little bit demanding... he said the president, speaker and political party (ZTE) waiting for these commissions," the Venecias said.

At this point, he said he took Arroyo aside and told her that it was "highly inappropriate" to say that the president, speaker and political party were waiting for commissions.

In an earlier interview, de Venecia said that at the time, he believed Arroyo was not involved. But now he said it was difficult to think that Arroyo did not know where the money was being going.

CANCELLATION OF DE LA FUENTE'S FRANCHISE

'LTFRB order without basis'

By Paula G. Manzano

SINGER Claire de la Fuente yesterday asked the Land Transportation Franchising and Regulatory Board (LTFRB) to reverse its decision to cancel her bus company's franchise.

In her motion for reconsideration, De la Fuente, the owner of Philippine Caribean Lines Corp., which operates 167 buses, said, in detail, that her company took part in numerous hearings in Manila which left thousands of commuters stranded.

She called the cancellation of her bus line "unfair, unjust and arbitrary," adding that the LTFRB merely wanted to make an example of her to scare other bus operators.

The transport body last month issued an order cancelling the franchise of the singer's bus company as it also served other companies to other smaller firms. This was what they were asked to have participated in the transport strike which was launched to protest the Metropolitan Manila Development Authority's decision to impose the exclusive routing scheme on passenger buses to ease traffic on major roads.

"We agree that a franchise is a privilege granted to (Philippine Caribean), subject to conditions imposed by law and public interest. But it cannot be withdrawn on a political, arbitrary capricious and baseless basis," said Mary Inez, De la Fuente's lawyer.

He questioned the LTFRB's decision to cancel the franchise of his client's bus company assigned to make bus routes operations more orderly and efficient.

According to Inez, De la Fuente was made an example of because she was the

QCPD forms group to solve car theft cases

By Nancy C. Canajal

THE POLICE have formed a group that would focus on the prevention of car thefts and the arrest of car thieves in Quezon City.

In the past, the Chief Insp. Benjamin Manalo, Quezon City Police Director QCPD, directed, particularly urged the public to participate in the campaign against car thefts as he announced the creation of the Quezon Anti-Car Stealing Unit (QACS).

Manalo said the creation of this unit is to deal with the continuing problem in addressing car theft cases in the city.

To ask the public from the incident (in view of) the current situation but we are assured we are addressing the problem," he added.

He said that QACS' primary responsibility was to conduct a relation campaign against organized crime, particularly car-jacking groups.

According to Manalo, there were five car-jacking groups operating in Metro Manila.

Winter storm affecting Super Bowl preparations

DALLAS—Super Bowl in the "Big D" has turned into the Big Chill, with snow, sleet and bitter cold threatening to disrupt America's biggest party.

Threatened by a massive winter storm that barreled across much of the United States, North Texas risk a far more like the North Pole, with power outages paralyzing much of Dallas.

While the cold was keeping the top pay Bowl party from heating up, the NFL and others were no major issues as preparations for Sunday's title game between the Green Bay Packers and Pittsburgh Steelers continued on schedule.

"Some hotels have experienced significant power loss," Mackinnon did not say and we have been in contact with the public utility commission."

The only power affected was the top pay Bowl party from heating up, the NFL and others were no major issues them back, which had to be an effort due to area schools being closed for several straight days.

The stadium conditions also posed the Steelers and Packers to move Pittsburgh's practice session indoors.

"It will call this weather wonder and I love it," said Pittsburgh defensive end James Farrior. "It is a storm of the weather you get, especially the weather willing to come here."

With the winter chill, the Super Bowl party has been down to heating.

Dallas' weather to widespread power outages on Wednesday that knocked out traffic lights and marred much of the stadium's atmosphere, which will be Super Bowl party ground.

Dallas' NFL's International Airport, the world's third busiest airport, was hit by a power outage on Wednesday after being closed on Tuesday for the first time since the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks because of the top conditions.

Ex-NBA star seeks London league soon

LONDON—NBA game Cyle Carter could become a league franchise living here in London, maybe even in the local clubs.

"Cyle the Glider" is the British capital to help create the first regular season NBA game to be played in London in March, and Carter said he would like to see himself in Europe and expansion to the continent may just be a matter of time.

"Normally if the demand comes, then it would actually happen," Carter told the Associated Press. "I'm probably 10 years or so away, but that is not too long to wait to see."

The NBA has played preseason games in London for the first time in 1996, but has since then. Last year, the league decided it was time to consider the NFL and NFL, both of whom have played regular season games in London.

The British Superstar and New Jersey Nets will play a game of games at the O2 on March 14-15.

"Basketball is a global sport," said Carter, who spent more than a decade playing for the Washington Wizards. "There's a demand around the world, and I want to see a commitment to trying to build a new arena."

And the distance won't be a problem. "There's a lot of people in Europe who love the game, but they don't have the same level of interest as we do in the US," Carter said. "We don't see it in the US, but in London, it's all about the game. They want to see the game. They want to see the game."

Pacers send Cavs to 22nd defeat

CLEVELAND—Cleveland's losing streak reached 22 games—over short of the NBA's longest—Monday as the Pacers scored 23 points and the Cavs scored 22 to lead the Indiana Pacers to a 117-112 win over the Cavaliers.

Until this game on Friday in Memphis, the Cavs (31-41) had won the league's all-time streak for 11 games, a record shared by the 1985-86 expansion Sacramento Kings and 1993-94 Denver Nuggets.

Ronney Jackson scored 21 points and scored 21 points for the Cavs. In Cleveland, the Cavs (31-41) had won the league's all-time streak for 11 games, a record shared by the 1985-86 expansion Sacramento Kings and 1993-94 Denver Nuggets.

David West had 20 points and 15 rebounds and Chris Duhon scored 13 points for New Orleans, which has lost three of four following a 10-game winning streak.

In New York, Rick Scott had 20 points and 11 rebounds, and Dallas lost to the third quarter before losing New York, 112-107, in its sixth straight loss.

Joe Smith scored 21 points and Ryan Anderson had 15 points and 11 rebounds for the Bulls, who won their first game since the 2001-02 season.

The win over the Cavaliers is the Cavs' 22nd loss in a row, which has lost three of four following a 10-game winning streak.

BOC pushing for voluntary disclosure scheme

Grant of relief from penalties, other charges

By Rainer W. Domingo

THE BUREAU of Customs is moving on the approval of a proposed scheme that would grant delinquent importers relief from penalties to help the agency meet its primary collection goal of P20.4 billion.

Customs Commissioner Angelito A. Alvarez yesterday said his proposal for a voluntary disclosure program was meeting Finance Secretary Cesar E. Purisima's pitch.

Alvarez said the BOC was not in a rush to meet its monthly goal for the month of January as a new contributing factor related to the latest new post, and the delay of documents among firms there have continued.

"It would be quite difficult to meet the primary collection target," Alvarez said, adding that major ports such as the Port of Manila would find it difficult to achieve their respective goals.

He said imports related to the holiday season that landed at the Port of Manila had accounted for about 40 percent of the total customs revenue in January.

If the BOC succeeds in February it would be the second consecutive time it would meet its goal for this year. In January, the agency met its collection target of about P20 billion.

"We cannot have something like the Christmas New Year every month to help us meet our revenue targets," Alvarez said. "But I am optimistic that we can find ways to offset any losses that we might incur because of volume free trade agreements that the Philippines is implementing."

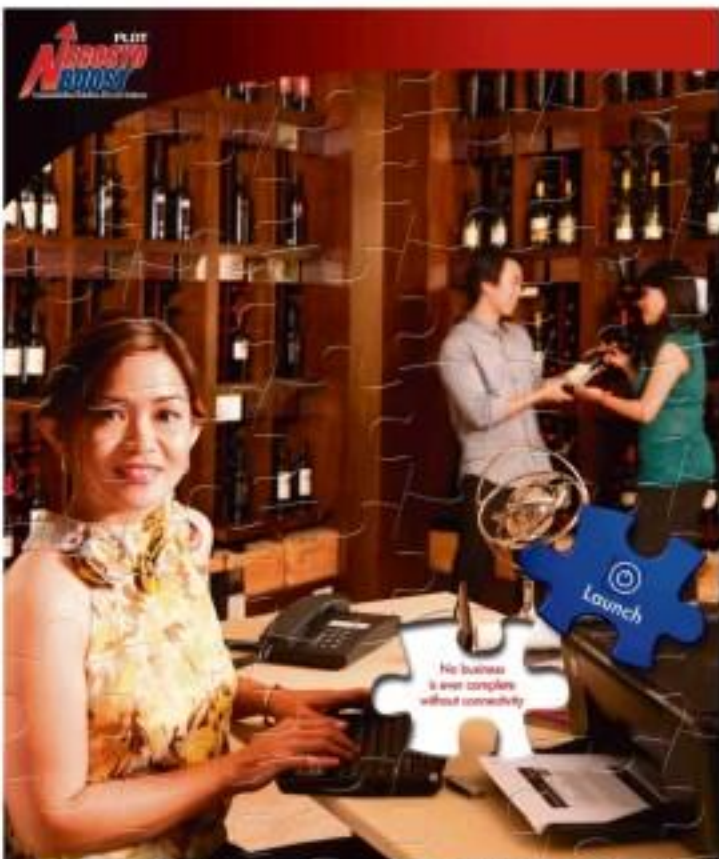

He said the proposed voluntary disclosure program might prove helpful as it would be similar to an amnesty program that the Bureau of Internal Revenue recently implemented, and through which the BIR raised some P1 billion from delinquent importers.

Based on the proposal, the BOC is willing to forgo of surcharges and penalties and instead collect from firms importers the basic tax due to the government.

The tariff and customs code imposes surcharges of 25 percent to 100 percent and a penalty amount of 10 percent on the duties that importers and importers owe the government.

Alvarez said that if the proposed program were approved, the plan was to implement it in at least three months.

He explained that it was the minimum time needed to allow delinquent penalties and surcharges that the bureau would forgo with the basic duties that could be collected.

Petron declares cash dividend

PETRON CORP., the country's largest oil refiner and retailer, yesterday approved a dividend distribution of P2.302 per share on preferred shares.

In a declaration to the Philippine Stock Exchange, Petron said it was targeting a pay-to-dividend on March 7 this year in recognition of record as of Feb. 21.

Its dividend policy requires Petron to declare dividends out of the company's unretained retained earnings, at least 25 percent of its unretained retained income (after taxes) for the prior fiscal year, payable either in cash, property or shares.

The company's board will determine, by resolution, the exact amount and the shareholders entitled to such dividends.

The oil firm declared dividends and paid preferred shareholders P2.302 per share on Jan. 7 and P2.302 per share on Dec. 6, 2010. — Ray A. Borne

Kelley's Blue Book Resale Value Awards prove Toyota's true worth

By Kimberly

TOYOTA HAS been a dominant brand in the country's new car market, but it's constantly reinventing a class of the country's car market, what it means to supplying the market with advanced and efficient cars, after more upstart brands seem to be catching up to it as their new quality cars are introduced. So what makes a Toyota different? Perhaps another factor in buying a Toyota would be its resale value.

When the time comes to part ways with your old car and look for a new replacement, aside from negotiating to get a good deal on the price, there's also sometimes even the financing rates. Toyota has to consider the resale value of their cars, as high resale value would help in giving out from other brands nowadays. By its presence, increased used car dealers will tell you that buying a Toyota is a sure bet for the highest resale value. After using your Toyota for three to five years, owners usually get a higher selling price than other competing brands. So in buying a new car, it is not only getting the best deal but also the benefit of not paying more than it is worth.

Aside from dominating the local automotive market, the Toyota Camry is America's best-selling car and its Corolla is the world's best-selling car in history. America's car buyers look into the Kelley Blue Book resale as a leading provider of new car prices, used car values, car reviews and according to the U.S. Kelley Research Institute, Inc., in a recent American Vehicle Classification study, it ranked KBB.com as the most useful automotive information website among new and used vehicle shoppers, and half of America's online vehicle shoppers visit KBB.com. It publishes the annual Kelley Blue Book Best Resale Value Awards recognizing automakers' outstanding achievement in producing new vehicles that best maintain their appeal after five years of ownership.

It's not surprising that Toyota and Lexus won KBB's "Best Resale Value" for "Mass Premium" and "Luxury Premium" for 2010 respectively as Toyota has been a benchmark for quality for over half a century of presence in the US market. While the two decades-old presence of Lexus is now achieved about 1.5 million, it has outshined other brands with a proven track record of quality and reliability even in the competitive and quality-conscious luxury market. Despite the negative media hype on quality issues in the last couple of years, Toyota and Lexus cars have risen and to enjoy a good market share are still considered to be highly desirable to new and used car market segments.

Quality, dependability and reliability are key reasons why the Toyota Camry is the best-selling car in the US market as well as why the Toyota Corolla is the best-selling car in the history of the world. It has been a proven formula for strong resale values. With a more financially disciplined American market, it's not surprising to see continued success for a brand that's built a strong reputation as a smart buy. As for the Lexus buying the Kelley Blue Book's Best Resale Value Award for its luxury brand, it's anchored on America's reputation for quality that's positively anchored in the industry. Lexus owners also frequently cite the dealership experience as a key component to their satisfaction and one of the reasons their next car will sport the same Lexus badge. Recently, Lexus has begun to build upon its foundation of quality by enhancing its lineup with more style and performance. In the premium compact business with the Lexus, Lexus also offers more hybrid models than any other automaker.

Toyota also had the most number of category wins in 2010 KBB resale value awards citing the Prius, Tacoma and RAV4 as the top 10 cars with highest resale values. The awards are based on the publication's projection of how well new models are expected to retain their original list price after five years of ownership. The average vehicle is expected to retain only about one-third of its original value after five years. Toyota's lasting average has yielded higher than average results, allowing it to be cited as America's top brand and some of its models projected to enjoy a higher resale value.

In a recent publication however, Toyota and Lexus were narrowly edged out for the 2011 model year brand awards after Kelley Blue Book published the 2011 Best Resale Value Awards. According to Kelley's Blue Book editors, this year's top five very close, with last year's winners, Honda and Lexus, barely missing the podium. However, new Toyota and new Lexus models made it in the 2011 top 10 readings as new resale value winners. Dominating the top 10 list in the 2011 Toyota Tacoma, with its reliable performance combined with ruggedness, is also the resale value and value leader in its competitive mid-size pickup segment in the US. It is also the Tacoma's 10th Best Resale Value Award in a row. Aside from this, other 2011 winners were the Toyota FJ Cruiser, the Lexus RX and GX models.

"Vehicle Depreciation is significant because it can be one of the biggest expenses during the first five years of ownership if you do not choose wisely. And it is something that most people don't consider when they are looking at cost of ownership, because buying a new vehicle is a pretty significant and exciting thing to do," said James Hall, senior vice president for the American Petroleum Institute.

Since 1986, Kelley Blue Book's The Vehicle Research has provided vehicle buyers and sellers with the new and used vehicle information they need to accomplish their goals with confidence. The company's improved website, www.kbb.com, provides the most up-to-date pricing and values, including the Fair Purchase Price, which reports what most buyers are paying for new cars. The company also reports resale pricing and values on products and services, including software products and the Common Car Book Official Guide.

WE OWE OUR 9th CONSECUTIVE TRIPLE CROWN TO YOU.

Thank you very much for constantly patronizing Toyota vehicles.
It is what drives us to stay on top.

In 2010, we bagged the Triple Crown for the 9th straight year.

We know that we could not have done this without you.

With 56,855* overall units sold in 2010, Toyota again achieved the highest sales among its competitors bagging 33.7% of the automotive market.

We ruled the Passenger Car category with 21,032 units sold, and dominated the Commercial Vehicle segment, selling 35,823 units.

We are very grateful for this honor. More importantly, we are privileged to have you in the passenger seat as we move forward to serving you even better.

HYPERALLERGIC. Natural. Organic. These two labels on skincare and makeup products that either contain or are often mislabeled by one or the other of two words.

When it comes to one word, companies point out, is natural, but you would never mistakenly use it against your skin, as it's obviously not allergic. For a, by definition, organic, but would you really want it on your face?

That because something is organic doesn't mean it's safe, says Paul Martin, Clinique managing director for Asia Pacific. But he is, however, allergic to some of the products he's working his way up in the cosmetics industry.

For example, there's rosemary. It's natural, and can be grown organically, a lot of beauty uses it for lip glosses because it helps the blood vessels on the lips and plumps them up. But not for Martin, because it causes allergic reactions in some people. He has very high standards, not that even if

Huge new hypermarket in San Pedro offers the 'total shopping experience'

By Alex Y. Vergara

SHOPWISE, THE pioneer in hypermarket shopping in the Philippines, recently opened its ninth branch in San Pedro, Laguna. Like its first store, which opened in February 1999, Shopwise's mission is to let office shoppers a number of items housed in one hypermarket shopping center, faster and more pleasant.

For now, it's the biggest Shopwise branch in date, with a shopping space of 4,500 sq m. This exclusive space allowed by management is a number of aisles, including H&M, Mervyn's, and various food items, to give customers a "total shopping experience."

Since its inception, led by Donnie Tanco, president of Donnie's Supermarket, Inc., has built its structure from the ground up on a current lot in Barangay Lungsod along San Pedro's national highway, it was able to secure up with a store that will be the model for future Shopwise stores.

Tanco and wife Cristina, now at the helm of Pineda Supermarket, transferred their brand of hypermarket shopping to San Pedro in the late '90s. It was only a matter of time before customers started following their lead.

Tanco began to double the number of Shopwise branches in 10 in the next two to three years. Before the year is over, Shopwise will open in Cebu, its first store outside Luzon. (Don't be all out yet, he said.)

Over and above the primary purpose of serving the public and ensuring relations, Shopwise with support, Tanco sees Shopwise as a vehicle for fulfilling a higher purpose: spreading wealth and creating positive jobs.

"We provide 3,000 jobs today," he said. "One additional job, by the end of 2013, to reach the 10,000 job mark."

DONNIE Tanco, president of Donnie's Supermarket, Inc., shows Shopwise's latest branch in San Pedro Hyper-Center, Catapitan.

Just like big supercenters abroad, such as Wal-Mart and Target, the well-lit and fully air-conditioned Shopwise San Pedro did away with a second level. The lower arrangement is reinforced by a double walkway, reinforced by a series of automatic escalators with double open decks of newly arranged and carefully classified goods.

To give you an idea, the pharmacy section—now found in almost all Shopwise branches—is bigger, and catches eye the customer needs. Classified on according to brands or manufacturers, but according to the condition to include they address.

The store is not without a share of glamour. A 10-story American-style single double-story fountain water complex with bar stools, two fountains and has outdoor steps of San Pedro. An old-fashioned jobber join to way there is.

"Shopping for groceries is basically like

SHOPWISE job personnel ready to serve.

At 4,500 sq m, it's Shopwise's biggest branch to date, and president Donnie Tanco hopes to make the 'core' of shopping efficient and enjoyable again."

doing the laundry," said Tanco. It is an exclusive feature. "It has become a chain. Our goal is to make the chain efficient and easy. The key to this, it should be to place and shop."

Tanco, who envisioned shopping and members of the staff to the exclusive branch, deemed the location a significant step in Shopwise's continuing evolution. The current branch, he said, is not enough to go back and restructure with Shopwise's DNA of making a chain while providing quality for all.

"Three years ago, at the height of the global financial crisis, we responded by changing the way Shopwise operates," he explained. "We made Shopwise a pay per use and discount policy. It pulled us out of the crisis, but it also played the Shopwise brand into a sea of customer with the market."

Shopwise San Pedro expands a brand from all that. In a nutshell, the company's new brand is about experience and differentiation.

"Expansion is about quality and product."

early of sales. Differentiation is about innovation in areas where we can help our customers or underserved needs, particularly of working mothers, our primary customers," he said.

Apart from being the benchmark for future stores, Shopwise San Pedro is also the first store with track Store, Shopwise CEO said.

A retail industry veteran with 17 years of experience behind him, the Filipino-born Tanco joined Shopwise in April after starting in Cebu and Pineda to Cebu and Hong Kong.

"This is the first time I've done a joint venture with the company," he said. "However, all the concepts you see will be gradually rolled out to the other stores. This isn't an experiment, because I've worked around these concepts before."

Best practices are designed not only to help customers save time and energy, but also to help them make the right choices. The walk section, the entrance, is organized based on the kind of milk a particular shopper is looking for.

Since most retailers the practice of highlighting "specials" using yellow tags to draw customers' attention. All these discounted items are also located in Shopwise's floor and catalogs, which the company says is a move to regularize customer prices.

"What they get here after going through the aisles of items, they would immediately start with their shopping rather than waste time checking out the entire store," he said.

Those of discounting items are compared to their regular prices when not on sale. On the left side of each aisle, yellow tags in smaller numbers, to the amount the customer saves on a particular item. Shopwise does it at least twice a month, said Tanco.

"This store will be the new model, but it doesn't mean we just copy and paste in the future," said Tanco. "Some of these new practices may have been around, but we can't everything based on local needs. We had to create very from day to day, even in the same country."

When it comes up with Shopwise, it took 30 and a half hours, but never been to the country. At the same time, he decided to leave China for the Philippines, but Tanco's positive attitude made it easier for him to finally pack his bags and go to the Philippines.

"The same store took a long time," he said of Tanco. "It's a very serious, with vision, someone who really cares for his people. We want to get our people after two months and let them again here. We want our people to give with us. If the people who work for you are happy, then it means they're reflected in customer service."

SHOPWISE San Pedro is the best of things to come, as Shopwise continues to expand and break new ground.

'Glee' star Lynch writing 'Happy Accidents' memoir

NEW YORK — The award-winning actress who plays the headstrong coach Sue Sylvester on the hit musical comedy "Glee" is writing a memoir. Publisher Hachette announced Tuesday that Jane Lynch's "Happy Accidents" will come out in September. The 50-year-old Lynch has won an Emmy and a Golden Globe for "Glee," and she's also a stage actor. Her memoir will cover her childhood, her career, and her life on "Glee." Lynch's other credits include "The 40-Year-Old Virgin" and "New York Minute." (A-G, A-G) 4P

FROM TIME TO TIME, we come up with a list of outstanding but sadly overlooked and undertheorized actors. Amy Poehler and Ron Rifkin are often on that recurring list. Well, we're happy to report that the long wait is over. Because look Amy and Ron are being featured in new interviews.

Amy is a student actor who found a lot about good film acting when she was directed by the late great Ronal, among other top-notch mentors.

For his part, Ronal was as devoted to the "maverick" idea of Emory Stall and would have romantic lead in actual theater. Along with Mike Romano, he was one of the few actors in the '70s and '80s who played "Raging" guys in Zelig's edgy comedies—and came away with a healthy skepticism in his.

Speaking of weights playing gay roles, Ronal's doing it is still appreciated by director in "Boys in the Boat" and don't look any but. Time Out is following with

Speaking of outstanding but generally overlooked talents, Tim Allen has a very and staying career as Most Annoying Man in the House, but he's proven to himself through the years and has finally combined himself as one of our best actors.

His delivery ratings are welcome, but what would really make our day would be a new movie for him and Ben, where both of them could be acting roles that would need their final line into a delightful, emotional victory.

His "recurring" or "recurring" role after his long "void" in the States, that now film could very well be to be more than just an aging hero's last. Well, Allen. So, let's all get on the acting, study, learn and grow to the expected state of cinema to make it happen.

Let's study some, lately too, it may be in high time for our best veteran actors to face the camera again and teach the younger generation of TV-film stars and movies what acting should be about.

These days, many young actors and actresses would use themselves out of dark rooms and underfoot. They've gone through all sorts of workshops but have been poorly taught, so all they can come up with is a show and go.

They may not act great and won't be all they're worth, but they fail to even show in their best of actors, because they're merely pretending instead of being.

The great, experienced idea of Amy Poehler and Tim Allen on the "Boys" team looks and feel convincing, because (as the young, badly-trained actors who are so full of only themselves), they have acquired the necessary and artistic sensibility to very out of their own actors and actresses in full with the characters they play—that they and others would be.

RICKY Gervais

No hosting return offer

LOS ANGELES—Golden Globe nominee on Tuesday that didn't expect that when Ricky Gervais was asked to return as host of 2011 program, following his recent performance in which he skewered the group that gives away the film and TV awards.

"There is no such thing as a free lunch," Gervais said after his award-winning performance in which he skewered the group that gives away the film and TV awards.

Gervais' statement came in response to an online posting by which magazine host of a Golden Globe award ceremony in Beverly Hills. He wrote that after the program, "respondents asked me to extend my stay."

Gervais' Golden Globe joke pointed to a recent film about the Hollywood Foreign Press Association only days ahead of the highly-watched program. But to readers, accepted with excitement and gifts from movie studios, looking for their next. Gervais
